

Additional Resources

As a club, we offer as much as we can for all of our players both on and off the field. Sometimes players want or need more support. For example, if a player wants or needs more technical training outside of their team practice, they can get private or small group training from their coach or other private trainers.

 These additional resources are recommended but not required. These are fee based services to consider and not included in the SoCal Reds FC CPP club fees.*

ID Camps: In addition to our own ID Camps, we do have a list of recommended ID Camps for players to attend for additional exposure.

There are 2 different types of College ID Camps.

1. Variety of college coaches at one camp. These are camps that have multiple different college coaches at one camp, so players can get a feel for different types and styles of college coaches. I recommend these types of camps for players that are early in the recruiting process and not exactly sure of their best fit yet.
2. College ID camp at the university of your interest. These are usually ID Camps where college coaches invite players to come to their camp, because they are interested in recruiting them to their school. If you are being recruited and they ask you to come to a camp, I always recommend asking them if they will be able to give you an answer on the opportunity with their team - especially if you have to travel and pay for the camp.

College ID Camps at the university are usually the camps that college coaches do the majority of their high level recruiting.

The other camps are usually for getting their name out there and working with other players that Might be an option.

I definitely recommend doing camps, but you have to be smart about which ones to do, so you spend your money wisely.

Exact ID Camps in Partnership with SCR FC 10% discount

College Soccer Exposure

Future 500 ID Camp

College ID Camps

Top Drawer ID Camps

ID Camps Soccer

IMG Academy Camps

Prior to the camp:

- If the camp posts the coaches that will be attending, then make sure you email them prior to the camp and let me know you will be attending and that you are interested in their program.
- Bring running shoes and all necessary equipment needed.
- Make sure you are in good shape and healthy to perform at your best.
- Ask details about the camp that you need. For example, will video footage be provided and how to access.

During the Camp:

- Show up early.
- Dress and look professional in soccer gear at all times.
- Try and make a connection with the college coaches, so you can follow up with them for feedback and insight.
- Always introduce yourself before each session.
- Work as hard as you can all the time and try to connect with other good players in the camp.
- Play your position but also let them know you can play any position on the field (if possible).
- Communicate on the field as much as possible.
- Thank them for the session with a hand shake.
- Ask them if they need help with anything OR even better - help with cones, bibs or balls.
- Ask for feedback after each session.

After the camp:

- Thank every single person that was involved, especially the college coaches.
- Ask about Assessments that you can get from the camp coaches.
- Send any follow up emails to the organizers or college coaches.
- Ask about details you need. For example, video footage, assessments, references etc...

Personal Consulting. For some players and parents this is the first time going through the college recruiting process and it can feel overwhelming. If you have specific needs or interests and you would like to sit down with someone to create a customized action plan to help walk you through the process, we recommend the College Soccer Guide.

www.collegesoccerguide.com